V. Woolcock,2017 Governments play a major role in the development process and constantly introduce reforms and policies to achieve developmental objectives Many of these interventions have limited impact however schools get built but children don t learn IT systems are introduced but not used plans are written but not implemented These achievement deficiencies reveal gaps in capabilities and weaknesses in the process of building state capability This book addresses these weaknesses and gaps It starts by providing evidence of the capability shortfalls that currently exist in many countries showing that many governments lack basic capacities even after decades of reforms and capacity building efforts The book then analyses this evidence identifying capability traps that hold many governments back particularly related to isomorphic mimicry where governments copy best practice solutions from other countries that make them look more capable even if they are not more capable and premature load bearing where governments adopt new mechanisms that they cannot actually make work given weak extant capacities The book then describes a process that governments can use to escape these capability traps Called PDIA problem driven iterative adaptation this process empowers people working in governments to find and fit solutions to the problems they face The discussion about this process is structured in a practical manner so that readers can actually apply tools and ideas to the capability challenges they face in their own contexts These applications will help readers devise policies and reforms that have more impact than those of the past   Assessment of Older Adults with Diminished Capacity Jennifer Moye,2005   A Principled Approach to Language Assessment National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education,Committee on Foreign Language Assessment for the U.S. Foreign Service Institute,2020-09-19 The United States is formally represented around the world by approximately 14 000 Foreign Service officers and other personnel in the U S Department of State Roughly one third of them are required to be proficient in the local languages of the countries to which they are posted To achieve this language proficiency for its staff the State Department s Foreign Service Institute FSI provides intensive language instruction and assesses the proficiency of personnel before they are posted to a foreign country The requirement for language proficiency is established in law and is incorporated in personnel decisions related to job placement promotion retention and pay A Principled Approach to Language Assessment Considerations for the U S Foreign Service Institute evaluates the different approaches that exist to assess foreign language proficiency that FSI could potentially use This report considers the key assessment approaches in the research literature that are appropriate for language testing including but not limited to assessments that use task based or performance based approaches adaptive online test administration and portfolios   The Turnaway Study Diana Greene Foster,2021-06 Now with a new afterword by the author Back cover   Complex Analysis Elias M.
